New Internet Presence for ENGEL

Schwertberg/Austria – November 2007. The Schwertberg-based injection moulding machine manufacturer ENGEL has a new Website. Since mid-November, information about the broad range of ENGEL products is provided even more quickly, clearly and extensively. www.engelglobal.com contains not only current product and application details, but also the latest information about ENGEL's target markets, current press releases and event information and an online registration form for seminars.

With the further development of the ENGEL corporate design, the Internet presence has been completely revamped. A significantly clearer structure, compact yet extensive information and more service for users due to substantial download possibilities characterize the new Website. Furthermore, the new site provides even faster access to special features, such as the online registration for seminars and a wide-ranging Job Corner. A subject-specific contact form simplifies your contact with the responsible departments. In addition, the integration of all the contents from the subsidiaries in the corresponding language starting as from the middle of next year will standardize the international ENGEL presence and adapt it to the new corporate design. "Everything under one roof" now applies even to our Website.
